EDITORIAL FOREWORD

This SOURCE BOOK and the INDEX contain detailed information on the statistical data available in Pennsylvania Statistical Agencies which are included in the Government of the Commonwealth. Most of the data were reported to be available as of October 1940. The SOURCE BOOK is intended to be used by persons who wish to secure statistical data for Pennsylvania or its Sub-divisions, and should be used in connection with the DIRECTORY OF STATE STATISTICAL AGENCIES previously published by this Committee in October 1939, and revised January, 1941

The data in the SOURCE BOOK were reported by the State Agencies themselves and are reproduced herein as reported. Users of the SOURCE BOOK are asked to report any changes or additions to the statistical series so that such pages may be replaced and the book kept up to date. Changes or corrections should be forwarded to:

Explanation of
Source Book of Pennsylvania Statistics

The SOURCES SECTION of this book consists of individual sheets describing statistical series and data available in each reporting Agency of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. These sheets contain descriptive information on the type of data, the dates on which the series are available, how the data may be secured, and the kinds of break-downs available from each series or separately reported item.

These sheets are arranged in alphabetical groups according to the Agency preparing or making available the data. Captions classifying each series have been placed at the top of each page, and the official name of the series is shown together with the name of the Agency maintaining the series. The name, address, location, and the telephone number of the contacting personnel within the Agency may be found in the DIRECTORY OF STATE STATISTICAL AGENCIES, published in October, 1939.

The INDEX SECTION provides an additional way of finding a particular series. It is a cross-index based upon the descriptive captions and official titles appearing on individual sheets. These two SECTIONS, together with the table of contents, should be used along with the DIRECTORY.

As a general caution, it is suggested that users of the SOURCE BOOK should contact the Agency maintaining the series for further explanation in cases where the SOURCE BOOK information does not seem clear or complete.

The following pages are not yet available. They will be forwarded as completed.

NOTES

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to the study of the properties of the function $f(x)$ defined by the equation

$$f(x) = \int_0^x \frac{1}{1+t^2} dt, \quad (1)$$

where x is a real number. It is well known that the function $f(x)$ is increasing and concave down on the interval $(-\infty, \infty)$.

2. In the second part of the paper, we consider the function $F(x)$ defined by the equation

$$F(x) = \int_0^x \frac{1}{1+t^2} dt, \quad (2)$$

where x is a real number. It is well known that the function $F(x)$ is increasing and concave down on the interval $(-\infty, \infty)$.

3. In the third part of the paper, we consider the function $G(x)$ defined by the equation

$$G(x) = \int_0^x \frac{1}{1+t^2} dt, \quad (3)$$

where x is a real number. It is well known that the function $G(x)$ is increasing and concave down on the interval $(-\infty, \infty)$.

NOTES

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to the study of the properties of the function $f(x)$ defined by the equation

$$f(x) = \int_0^x \frac{1}{1+t^2} dt, \quad x \in \mathbb{R}.$$

It is shown that the function $f(x)$ is strictly increasing and concave down on the interval $(-\infty, \infty)$. Moreover, it is proved that the function $f(x)$ has a horizontal asymptote at $y = \frac{\pi}{2}$ as $x \rightarrow \pm\infty$.

2. In the second part of the paper, we consider the problem of finding the maximum value of the function $f(x)$ on the interval $[0, 1]$. It is shown that the maximum value of $f(x)$ on this interval is attained at $x = 1$ and is equal to $\frac{\pi}{4}$.

3. The third part of the paper is devoted to the study of the properties of the function $g(x)$ defined by the equation

$$g(x) = \int_0^x \frac{1}{1+t^2} dt, \quad x \in \mathbb{R}.$$

It is shown that the function $g(x)$ is strictly increasing and concave down on the interval $(-\infty, \infty)$. Moreover, it is proved that the function $g(x)$ has a horizontal asymptote at $y = \frac{\pi}{2}$ as $x \rightarrow \pm\infty$.

4. In the fourth part of the paper, we consider the problem of finding the maximum value of the function $g(x)$ on the interval $[0, 1]$. It is shown that the maximum value of $g(x)$ on this interval is attained at $x = 1$ and is equal to $\frac{\pi}{4}$.

5. The fifth part of the paper is devoted to the study of the properties of the function $h(x)$ defined by the equation

$$h(x) = \int_0^x \frac{1}{1+t^2} dt, \quad x \in \mathbb{R}.$$

NOTES

1. The first step is to identify the key components of the system. This includes understanding the hardware, software, and data involved. 2. The second step is to define the requirements for the system. This involves determining what the system needs to do and what it must be able to handle. 3. The third step is to design the system. This includes creating a detailed plan for how the system will be built and how it will be tested. 4. The fourth step is to implement the system. This involves building the system according to the design and testing it to ensure it works as intended. 5. The fifth step is to maintain the system. This involves keeping the system up-to-date and fixing any problems that arise.

STATE STATISTICAL BUREAU, HARRISBURG, PENNSYLVANIA

In May 1944, the Committee on State Statistics of the Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Statistical Association sent to you the Source Book of Pennsylvania Statistics. At that time the pages for the Bureau of Vital Statistics were omitted because these pages were not completed.

At this time we are sending pages 37, 38, and 39 for the Source Book containing information on vital statistics maintained by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. These pages should be inserted in the proper place in your copy of the Source Book. It might be well, also, to make certain that the Sources Section of the Source Book to that date which is inserted is properly indexed.

It should be planned to receive information on any charges which have occurred in statistical work described in the Source Book. This we can discuss should we be invited to do so.

Very respectfully,

COMMITTEE ON STATE STATISTICS

NOTES

Introduction

The purpose of this study is to investigate the effects of various factors on the growth of a certain plant species. The study was conducted over a period of six months, during which time the plants were grown under different conditions. The factors being studied include light intensity, temperature, and soil moisture. The results of the study show that light intensity has a significant effect on the growth of the plant, with higher light levels resulting in faster growth. Temperature also has a significant effect, with higher temperatures leading to faster growth. Soil moisture was found to have a less significant effect on growth, with higher moisture levels resulting in slightly faster growth. The study concludes that light intensity and temperature are the most important factors affecting the growth of this plant species.

The following table shows the growth rate of the plant under different conditions.

NOTES

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of understanding the underlying mechanisms of the system. It highlights the need for a comprehensive analysis of the data and the role of the model in this process. The second part of the paper focuses on the development of the model, which is based on the principles of the theory of the system. The third part of the paper presents the results of the model, which show that the model is able to accurately predict the behavior of the system. The fourth part of the paper discusses the implications of the results and the need for further research.

The model is based on the principles of the theory of the system, which states that the system is a complex of interacting elements. The model is developed by applying the principles of the theory to the data. The results of the model show that the model is able to accurately predict the behavior of the system.

NOTES

The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general principles of the theory of the structure of the atom. It is shown that the structure of the atom is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, which are based on the principle of least action. The second part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the structure of the nucleus. It is shown that the structure of the nucleus is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, which are based on the principle of least action. The third part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the structure of the molecule. It is shown that the structure of the molecule is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, which are based on the principle of least action.

NOTES

1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to define the problem. This involves identifying the symptoms of the problem and determining the scope of the problem. Once the problem has been defined, the next step is to identify the causes of the problem. This involves identifying the factors that are contributing to the problem and determining the underlying causes of the problem. Once the causes of the problem have been identified, the next step is to develop a plan to address the problem. This involves identifying the actions that need to be taken to address the problem and determining the resources that will be needed to implement the plan. Once a plan has been developed, the next step is to implement the plan. This involves taking the actions that have been identified in the plan and putting them into practice. Finally, the last step in the process is to evaluate the results of the plan. This involves determining whether the plan has been successful in addressing the problem and identifying any areas for improvement.
